Brian Friel's play Translations is about the unfortunate decline of the Irish language, and the resulting loss of Irish identity. This issue is central to the play, and the O'Donnel family's experiences bring forth the issue to the audience. At the start of the play, the Irish Maire is not very good at speaking English.

Review of Friel's Analysis of Translations at Superior Papers

Despite growing fame and success, the 1980s is considered Friel's artistic "Gap" as he published so few original works for the stage: Translations in 1980, The Communication Cord in 1982, and Making History in 1988. Privately, Friel complained both of the work required managing Field Day (granting written and live interviews, casting, arranging tours, etc.) and of his fear that he was "trying to impose a 'Field Day' political atmosphere" on his work.
